

What is the Oregon Writing Project?

The Oregon Writing Project is a professional-development network of teachers who seek to improve the teaching of writing and literacy at all grade levels, in all subject areas. The Oregon Writing Project is a collaboration of Southern Oregon University and teachers throughout southern Oregon.

Our Young Writers' Camps began in 2001, when a group of dedicated OWP teachers designed a week of engaging writing activities for students who loved to write. Since then, students attending our camps have enjoyed the experience of writing with their peers, with guidance from adults who also love to write.

Our young writers' camps are made possible through partnerships with the Medford School District and SOPTV's Teacher Community Program, and the support of southern Oregon schools. The Oregon Writing Project is grateful to our community partners for their support of innovative teachers and dedicated young writers.

Blending creativity, enrichment, and fun to encourage and develop students' passion for writing.

This flyer is distributed to Ashland School District students as a courtesy to parents per board policy. Ashland School District does not endorse or sponsor community activities including any described in this flyer. If you have questions regarding this policy, please contact your child's principal.
