

Oregon Writing Project at SOU Summer Institute 2014

You're invited to apply!

JOIN US THIS SUMMER TO...

- Strengthen your skills as a writer and teacher;
- Enjoy meaningful collaboration with colleagues;
- Become a Teacher Consultant for the Oregon Writing Project;
- Renew your enthusiasm for writing and teaching!

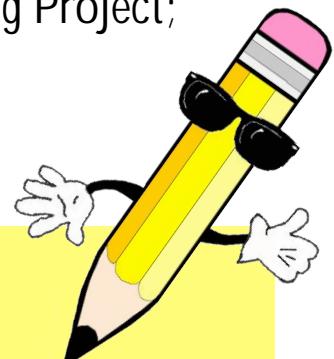

Who: Teachers of all grade levels and subjects (K-college)

What: 3-week Literacy Leadership Institute

When: July 28 - Aug. 15, 2014, 9 am - 3 pm

Where: Southern Oregon University

Cost: No cost for teachers who are selected to participate as Summer Fellows.
Fellowship includes a small stipend to cover incidental expenses. (Three optional graduate credits are available for $210.)

Spaces are limited! Apply online today! (See reverse for detailed information.)
Summer Fellow applications must be received by June 6, 2014.

For more information about the Summer Institute, contact Dr. Margaret Perrow:
perrowm@sou.edu, or (541) 552-6632.

As an affiliate of the National Writing Project, the Oregon Writing Project at Southern Oregon University is authorized under Title II, Part C as a provider of standards-aligned professional development for teachers and administrators. www.sou.edu/owp

Consider applying if...

- You have an interest in (or passion for) writing and teaching writing—at any grade level, in any content area.
- You have a promising approach to teaching writing that you'd like to develop and share with others
- You would like to develop your leadership skills and become a Teacher Consultant
- New and returning OWP Summer Fellows welcome!

It's easy to apply!

Complete the online application form. There is also a link to this application on the OWP website: www.sou.edu/owp. Applications must be received by June 6, 2014.

2014 Institute participants commit to:

- Attend one pre-session meeting on Thursday June 19 or Friday June 20, 4-7 pm at the Higher Education Center in Medford
- Participate in the entire 3-week Invitational Summer Institute (9 am-3 pm: M-Th, July 28-August 7 and M-F August 11-15)
- Participate in a follow-up planning meeting in late summer or early fall 2014
- Present a demonstration lesson/workshop for teachers as part of the Oregon Writing Project 2014-15 "Saturday Series."

Benefits to participants include:

- Develop yourself as a writer to help you improve your students' writing
- Gain deeper knowledge about the theory and practice of teaching writing
- Enjoy meaningful collaboration with colleagues
- Develop a complete demonstration lesson that you will be able to share with colleagues.
- Build leadership skills. Upon successful completion of the Invitational Summer Institute, participants will be designated Oregon Writing Project Teacher Consultants.
- No cost to teachers selected to participate as Summer Fellows! Fellowship includes $350 stipend to cover incidental expenses.
- Three optional graduate credits available for $210.

"My teaching has changed since the OWP summer institute. I learned new activities, but even more important was the new energy I took into the classroom with me..." (past participant)

2014 Summer Institute facilitators:

Margaret Perrow, Assistant Professor of English Education and director of the Oregon Writing Project at SOU. Andra Hollenbeck, sixth-grade teacher in Medford, OR and an Oregon Writing Project Teacher Consultant.

Want more information? Contact Dr. Margaret Perrow: perrowm@sou.edu, or (541) 552-6632